Alison Brooks won the 2021 RIBA House of the Year award

Alison Brooks Architects

alisonbrooksarchitects.com

For the founder of this multi-award-winning architecture practice, 'a successful design is one where the client immediately feels at home in the building and yet is surprised by what the architecture offers them: generosity of space, beautiful light, unexpected views and thoughtful details'. A notable recent success for Alison Brooks was the extraordinary house that won the 2021 RIBA House of the Year award and which was featured in the July 2022 issue of House & Garden. In many of her high-profile residential projects, including that house in Gloucestershire and Salt House, in Essex, Alison experiments with what she calls organic geometry. 'For me, it's about loosening the boundaries that define space,' she says. 'Subtle angles create a near imperceptible sense of spatial informality.'

McLEAN QUINLAN

mcleanquinlan.com

Run by mother-and-daughter duo Fiona McLean and Kate Quinlan along with son-in-law Alastair, this Winchester- and London-based studio majors in beautifully crafted, contemporary houses, designed with everyday life at the forefront.

HACKETT HOLLAND
