

Step into the Wow!House

Opening its doors on 6 June, this celebration of collaboration at Design Centre, Chelsea Harbour will see 18 uplifting spaces created by the hottest names in interiors. We caught up with three for a glimpse of what's in store...

Tala Fustok

Asked to create a home bar for Wow!House, this rising star of the interiors world decided to stretch her imagination. It went galactic. Described as 'a hedonistic moonscape with art deco design details,' her watering hole will be dotted with sculptures from Vessel Gallery, as well as vintage silverware. 'We want to transport visitors to another realm,' says Fustok. 'The space will ooze glamour and champion escapism at its finest' (talafustok.studio).

Studio Winch

Selina McCabe (pictured), senior partner at Studio Winch, has worked with outdoor-furniture experts Summit to create the terrace at Wow!House. 'Where chic meets beach' was the concept, with inspiration taken from elegant retreats on the Côte d'Azur and Palm Beach, as well as the sun-soaked socialites featured in American photographer Slim Aarons' work. Whatever the weather, there will always be sunny vibes, plus a chance to try out the sculptural 'Arc' collection, designed by Summit in collaboration with Studio Winch (winchdesign.com).

Clare Gaskin

After a drink at the home bar and lively chats on the terrace, it may be time for some quiet reflection. Clare Gaskin's study will be, she says, 'an inspiring sanctuary'. Intended to reflect the experience of a true traveller, one who seeks out craftspeople and learns about cultural heritages, it will, she adds, 'celebrate creativity and harness a connection to the outside world'. Gaskin will also see that the pieces on display will be used again, to ensure as little waste as possible (claregaskin.com).

Wow!House is open from 6 June to 6 July, tickets £20 (£10 for students), available at dch.seetickets.com
